'Central Manufacturing Technology Institute', formerly known as 'Central Machine Tool Institute', CMTI in short, was established in 1962, as an R & D organization for Machine Tools and Production Engineering by the Government of India in technical collaboration with VUOSO, Czechoslovakia. CMTI has the role of being a catalyst and a key player in the growth of manufacturing technology in the country. The main objective of CMTI is to provide support to a wide spectrum of industry to achieve excellence in technology and to stimulate economic growth in the manufacturing sector in the country. Since its inception, the institute has been steadily updating its facilities and expertise in thrust areas of Manufacturing Technology in keeping with changing trends and meeting the increasing demand of Indian industries in Leading Edge Technologies. CIM, robotics, precision engineering, nanotechnology, rapid prototyping and laser machining are some of the current thrust areas.

CMTI is registered as a society of Govt. of India and membership is open to all engineering industries and professionals in the field. The membership to CMTI also opens the gateway to the knowledge repository built up at the NATIONAL INFORMATION CENTRE FOR MACHINE TOOLS AND PRODUCTION ENGINEERING (NICMAP)

The National Information Centre for Machine Tools and Production Engineering (NICMAP) is the Sectoral Information Centre set-up in CMTI under ISSAT Scheme of Government of India to cater to the information needs of the engineering industries. Since its inception in 1977, the centre has been providing information services to its user community.
